

6 Types of Phishing

you can totally spot

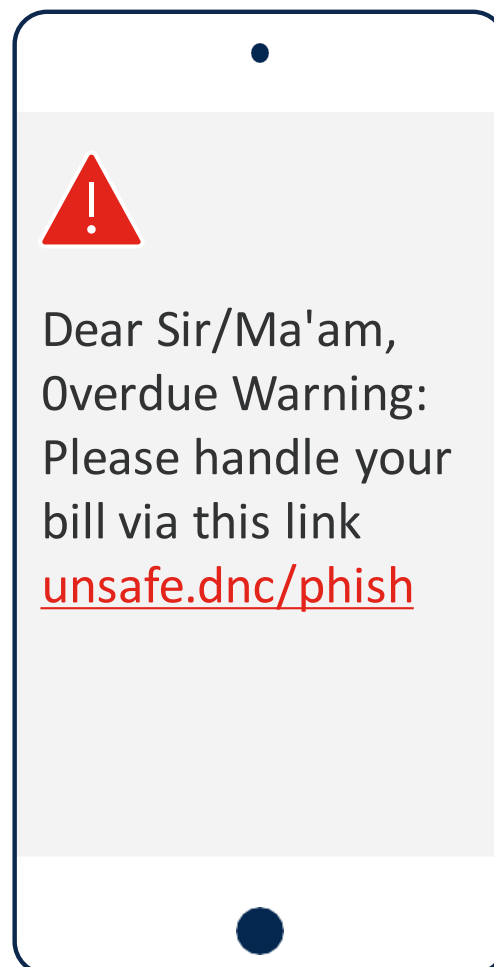

Email

Be wary of links or attachments in unsolicited emails, especially those marked urgent.

Smishing

Generic greetings and spelling errors in texts?
Phishy. Go directly to the source (if known) for verification.

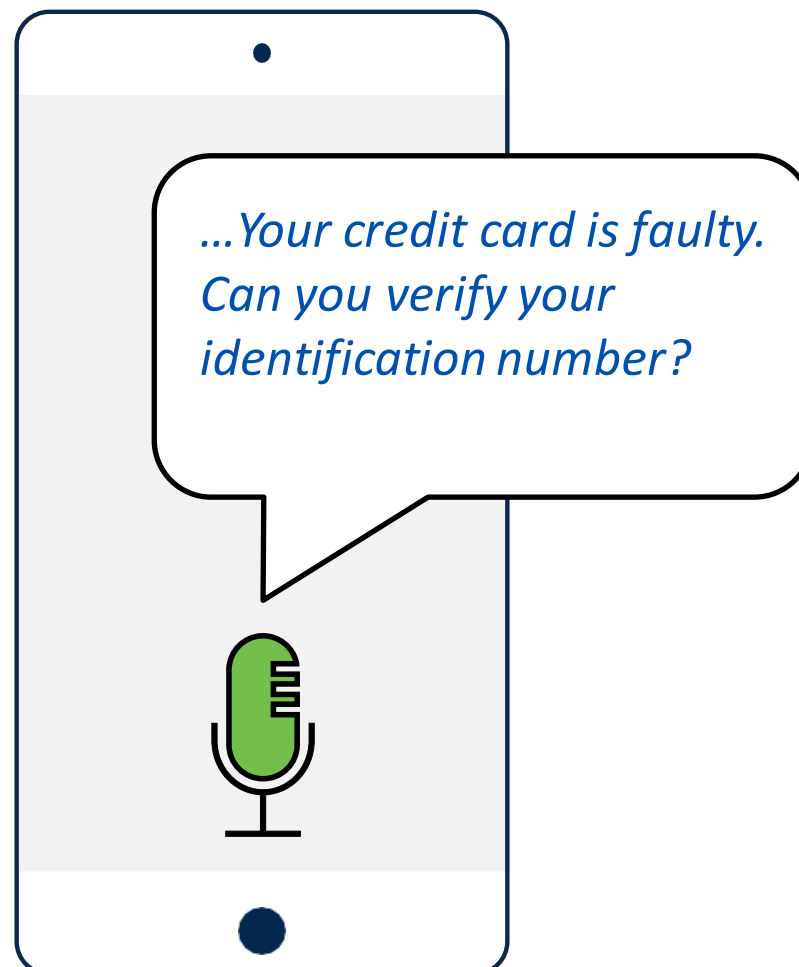

1

2

3

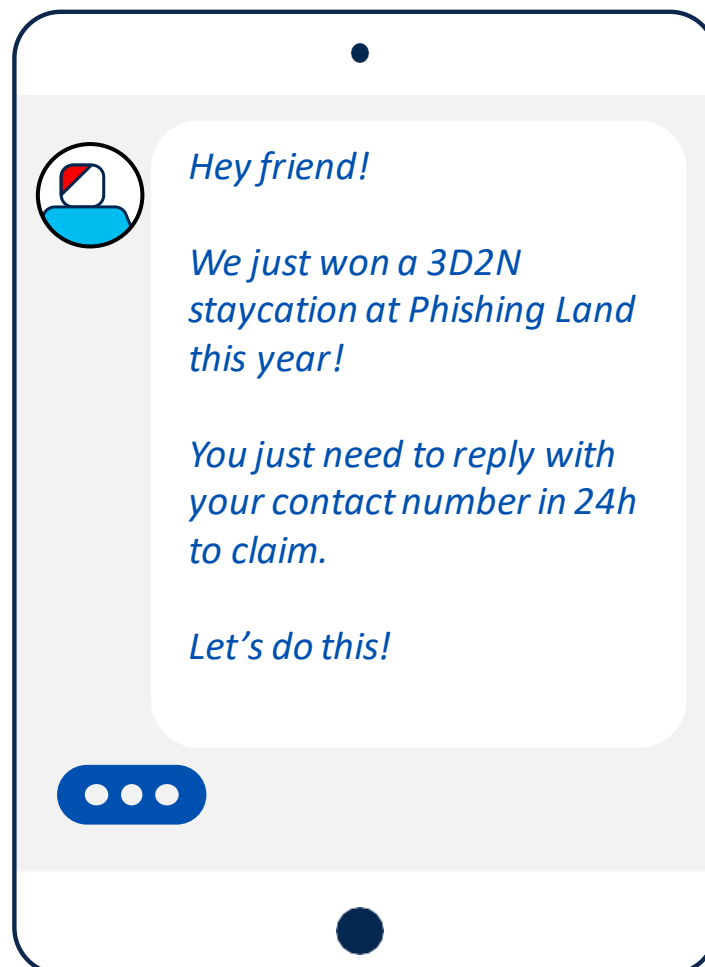

Vishing

With unexpected phone calls, avoid giving personal details and take control of the conversation (e.g Offer to give a call back directly to the institution later)

Angler phishing

Guards up on social media. Don't be lured by "deals", they are usually too good to be true.

1

2

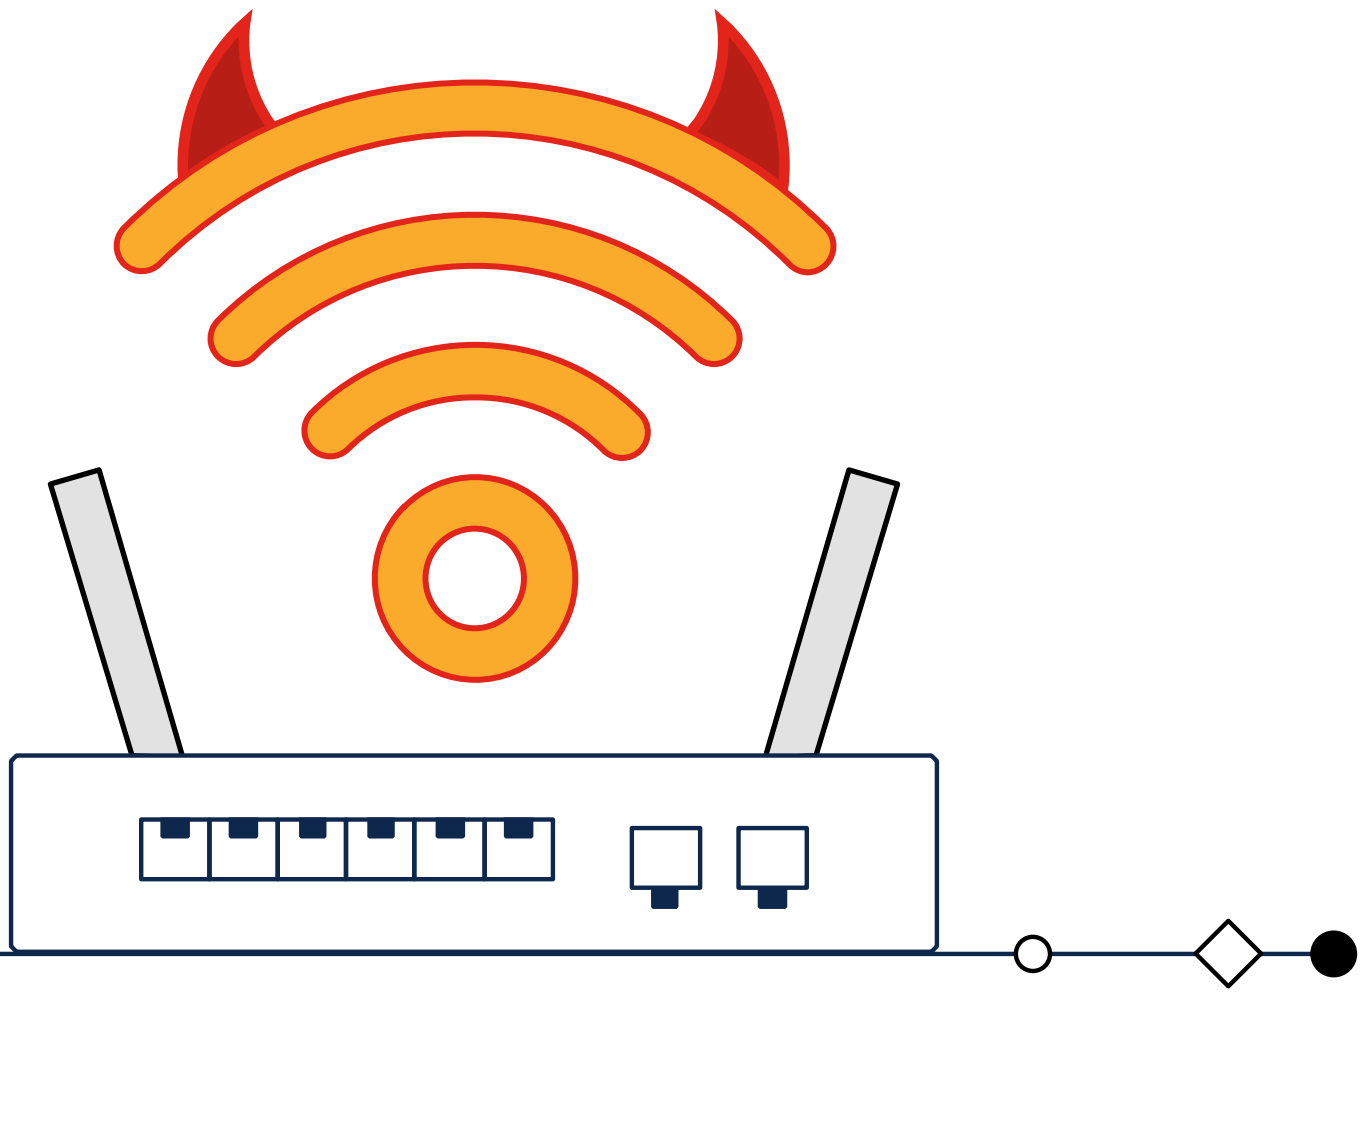

3

4

5

Evil twin hotspots

Fraudulent Wi-Fi access points exist. If your device warns you about an insecure network, stay away.

Pop-up phishing

Make your one click the right click – look for options to close the pop up instead of responding to their ask

